1. About the Department

The Department of Economics with Foreign Trade, established in the 2010-11 academic year, has swiftly grown into a prominent academic unit known for its exceptional teaching and comprehensive curriculum. Initially, the department commenced with just three faculty members, each possessing strong teaching skills and a commitment to academic excellence. Over the years, the department has expanded its faculty and resources to provide a robust educational experience.

The department's curriculum is designed to encompass both traditional and specialized areas of economics. Core subjects such as microeconomics, macroeconomics, and econometrics form the foundation of the program. Additionally, the BAEFT program introduces students to practical and industry-relevant subjects including Shipping and Insurance Practices, International Economics, Foreign Trade Documentation, and Logistics. These courses are tailored to provide students with a well-rounded understanding of economic principles and their applications in global trade.

Since its inception, the Economics with Foreign Trade program has been met with enthusiastic response from students. The program's popularity is largely attributed to its pragmatic approach, which prepares students for the job market by equipping them with relevant skills and knowledge. The curriculum is meticulously structured to ensure that graduates are not only academically proficient but also highly employable.

Initially offering only an undergraduate degree in economics, the department expanded its academic offerings in 2019 by introducing a postgraduate course, the MA in Economics. This expansion has provided students with advanced learning opportunities and has enhanced the department's academic stature.

The PG Department of Economics continues to thrive, reflecting its dedication to high-quality education and its responsiveness to the dynamic demands of the global economy. Graduates from this department are well-prepared to navigate and succeed in their professional careers, making it a preferred choice for students pursuing studies in economics and foreign trade.

2. Vision and Mission

Vision

The vision of the PG Department of Economics is to be a leading academic center renowned for excellence in teaching, research, and professional development in the fields of economics and international trade. The department aims to produce graduates who are equipped with the knowledge, skills, and ethical grounding necessary to excel in a globalized economy and contribute positively to society.

Mission

The mission of the PG Department of Economics is to:

1. Provide a comprehensive education in economics and foreign trade that integrates theoretical knowledge with practical applications.
2. Foster a stimulating learning environment that encourages critical thinking, innovation, and lifelong learning.
3. Engage in high-quality research that addresses contemporary economic challenges and contributes to academic and policy discourse.
4. Establish strong partnerships with industry, government, and international organizations to enhance the educational and professional opportunities for students.
5. Promote ethical practices and social responsibility among students and faculty.

Objectives

1. Deliver a rigorous and relevant curriculum that covers core economic principles and specialized topics in foreign trade.
2. Encourage and support faculty and student research projects that advance knowledge in economics and international trade.
3. Equip students with the analytical, quantitative, and soft skills required to succeed in the job market and pursue advanced studies.

4. Develop collaborations with industry stakeholders to provide practical training, internships, and job placements for students.
5. Instill a global perspective in students by incorporating international case studies, exchange programs, and exposure to diverse economic environments.
6. Promote ethical decision-making and social responsibility in academic and professional pursuits.

By adhering to these vision and mission statements and achieving its objectives, the Department of Economics with Foreign Trade aims to cultivate knowledgeable, skilled, and socially responsible professionals who can contribute effectively to the global economy.

9. Tutor Meeting

Purpose: The primary purpose of our monthly tutor meetings is to facilitate collaboration, foster a sense of community among faculty members, and address any challenges or concerns related to teaching and learning.

Objective: Our overarching objective is to enhance the quality of education delivered at our institution by promoting continuous professional development, sharing best practices, and staying abreast of the latest pedagogical trends and advancements.

Meeting Time: In order to ensure consistency and facilitate planning, the monthly tutor meetings are scheduled to take place before the 5th of every month. The specific time and location will be communicated well in advance, allowing ample time for preparation.

Frequency: Each month, a single tutor meeting will be held, providing an opportunity for all faculty members to actively participate and contribute to the ongoing dialogue surrounding education excellence.

Total Number of Meetings: Over the course of the academic year, a total of 10 tutor meetings will be convened, enabling us to maintain regular communication and collaboration throughout the entire academic cycle.

These meetings are not only a platform for professional growth but also an occasion to celebrate our collective achievements and reaffirm our commitment to student success

18. Seminar and conferences

Seminars and conferences are valuable platforms for students and professionals to exchange ideas, discuss current trends, and enhance their knowledge in various fields. These events typically feature guest speakers, presentations, panel discussions, and networking opportunities, providing attendees with insights and inspiration for their academic and professional pursuits. The PG Department of Economics organizes such programs regularly, bringing together experts and enthusiasts to explore emerging topics and share expertise, enriching the learning experience for students and contributing to the academic community at large.

19. PTA Meeting

Parent meetings are essential gatherings that provide an opportunity for parents and teachers to discuss the progress and development of students. These meetings typically involve discussions about academic performance, behavior, and any concerns or challenges the student may be facing. They also serve as a platform for parents to provide feedback and suggestions to improve the educational experience of their children. Our department conducts these meetings regularly, fostering collaboration between home and school to ensure that students receive the necessary support and guidance to thrive academically and personally.

20. Extension and outreaching activities

Extension and outreach programs in college are initiatives aimed at extending the institution's resources and expertise to the surrounding community or specific target groups. These programs often involve various activities such as workshops, seminars, training sessions, community service projects, and awareness campaigns. They serve to bridge the gap between academia and society by addressing local needs, promoting social responsibility, and fostering mutual learning and collaboration. Extension and outreach programs not only benefit the community by providing access to knowledge and resources but also enrich the educational experience of students by allowing them to apply their skills in real-world contexts and develop a sense of civic engagement.

23. Cross Cutting Issues

Cross-cutting issues in college syllabi and curricula are essential themes integrated across various programs to address broad societal challenges and promote holistic education. These issues often include gender, human values, professional ethics, and environmental sustainability. Integrating cross-cutting issues like gender, human values, professional ethics, and environmental sustainability into college curricula ensures that students receive a well-rounded education. This approach not only enhances their academic knowledge but also prepares them to be responsible, ethical, and informed citizens capable of contributing positively to society and the environment. The following are the programs

24. Conclusion

In conclusion, the academic year 2023-2024 has been a period of remarkable achievements and progress for the PG Department of Economics. Through a series of meticulously planned programs and initiatives, we have successfully fulfilled our commitment to providing holistic education and fostering a conducive learning environment.

Our department has proactively organized various cross-cutting programs and capacity enhancement initiatives aimed at nurturing well-rounded professionals equipped with both theoretical knowledge and practical skills. Collaborations through previous years MOUs have enriched our academic ecosystem, offering students exposure to diverse perspectives and opportunities.

The seminars on Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) and research methodology have been instrumental in fostering a culture of innovation and academic rigor among our students. Additionally, our efforts in facilitating placements and guiding students towards higher education reflect our dedication to empowering students for successful career trajectories.

Emphasizing student-centric methods, we have implemented programs focused on problem-solving, participative learning, and experiential learning, ensuring an engaging and enriching educational experience.

As we reflect on the accomplishments of the past academic year, we are inspired to continue our journey towards academic excellence, innovation, and student-centric learning. We extend our heartfelt gratitude to all stakeholders—faculty, students, staff, and collaborators—for their unwavering support and commitment to the department's vision.

Looking ahead, we remain steadfast in our mission to nurture future leaders and contribute meaningfully to the academic and professional landscape.
